PROFILE

Funlola Olufunwa is an actor, acting teacher and writer. She is a graduate of the Royal Central's MA in Actor Training and Coaching and prior to that, trained at RADA on the BA Acting course. She has taught in a variety of institutions, including Royal Central, RADA, Liverpool Theatre School and WAC.

As a performer, Funlola most recently did some motion capture and voice-over work for the video game Strange Brigade, toured the UK in a live production of Paw Patrol, and starred in two episodes of Eastenders.

She is working on a triptych of plays called A Cord of Three Strands, which had a rehearsed reading at the RADA Studios (for Women at RADA) in September 2018.
