PROFILE

A Greek-born London-based practicing architect and scenographer, I am founder and artistic director of Performing Architectures, a new company that creates real and virtual environments by designing, devising and producing scenography-led performances, installations, and buildings.

I studied architecture at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, drama at Theatre Lab in Thessaloniki, and hold an MA in Theatre Design / Scenography from Wimbledon College of Arts.

I joined Central in 2013, having previously taught at the Theatre Studies Faculty University of Peloponnese, and I often visit other universities and organisations for lectures and workshops, in the UK and abroad.

Through practice, research and teaching, I explore ways of using different spaces and architectures as scenographic tools in theatre and performance.

I often work as a scenographer/-initiator/-leader of performances or installations, sometimes inspired by biographical and every-day-life subjects. Theatres, abandoned buildings, urban outdoors locations and landscapes, homes and flats, a bar and my olive grove, are all spaces that I have explored and used in past projects.

Current projects include a 'walking performance' and a site-responsive performance/installation, using a bridge and a Victorian warehouse in London as scenographic metaphors.

I also collaborate with directors as a designer in theatre productions, investigating how to use a theatre building as a 'found space'. I designed the new studio theatre of Athens National Theatre, a flexible-retractable-transformable space that won a 'Gold Medal for Best Work in Theatre Architecture and Performance Space' at the Prague Quadrennial 2011.

I am currently designing a new 'Performing Arts Centre' for the International School of Uganda in Kampala. The new building will include a 460-seat auditorium and new facilities for the drama, dance, music and visual arts departments.

I have recently completed a PGCert Teaching and Learning in Higher Education at Central and I was awarded Fellowship status from the Higher Education Academy. I am a professional member of the Architects Registration Board and the Society of British Theatre Designers.
